INDEPENDENT IS LOCATED IN NEW BUILDING

The ordeal of moving is over and the Independent is comfortably housed in its own home.

It was no small matter to transport heavy machinery, type and fixtures and make the adjustments in time to bring this issue to the readers without great inconvenience but thanks to efficient assistance, we accomplished the task. The work was done very carefully by the men employed to take care of the various details. Saturday at noon the big Babcock Standard press was turned over to Mr. Vernon Berry, of Uniontown an expert pressman who has had almost a life experience in handling machinery of the most complicated character. Mr Berry rolled up his sleeves and not only did he direct the work, but he held up his share. He took hold of the heavy parts and in eighteen hours he had the press torn down, transported to the new building and set up ready to run. Mr. Berry demonstrated to our entire satisfaction that he is a press man of unusual ability. Every bolt was put into place without confusion and he was unmolested by the dozens of people who passed in and out to watch the process of removing a print shop. His work here was entirely satisfactory and we can recommend him to any firm needing the services of an up to date man in his line. Mr. Berry has for four years been pressman for the Uniontown Herald.

A. Marple and company had charge of the hauling and his work was done under the personal supervision of Mr. Albert Marple, who is an adept at such business. So carefully did he execute his part that not a piece of machinery was broken, and not a bolt lost and we doubt very much if he dropped a type. The job was completed yesterday morning when he folding machine was moved. It is customary in handling a printing office to make "pie" but it was surprising how this was avoided. George Eggers very ably assisted in the ordeal and acted as property and general utility man. He was on the job until the last piece of machinery was hitched up.

Many people have visited us in the new quarters and all give fluent expressions of the fine plant and equipment possessed by the Independent. Men from other towns who have worked in the newspaper business many years have visited the plant and comment upon the fine location and the general plan of the buiding, which was designed expressly for the paper. These many testimonials are appreciated and we trust the patrons of the paper and the general public will not forget us in our new quarters and that they will assist in our effort to give Monessen a live and up to date newspaper.

COMMENDS OUR CIVIC ATTITUDE

"The determination of Monessen and Donora, to begin a campaign to make their towns more attractive to the residents, and thus induce the men employed in the various mills in these two towns to make their homes there, is notice to surrounding municipalities to sit up and take notice.

It is only natural that the towns in question should seek to make conditions better, and the surroundings more attractive, so that all of those who find employment there will be induced to make these towns their homes, thus adding to the population and the prosperity of the two boroughs. At the present time hundreds of men who find employment both in Donora and Monessen live elsewhere, and in this respect Monongahela is quite a gainer. Many of the young men of the city find profitable work there, but prefer to live in their home town, or in other cases, prefer to board there. It is to induce all these men, if such a thing is possible, to make thier homes in the towns in which they find employment, and no doubt the boards of trade of these two towns will do much toward improving the present conditions, and outlining a program which will have for its object the betterment of the towns in general, thus making them more attractive as a place of residence.

While this campaign is going on, Monongahela should not neglect to take action looking towards the same results. With cheaper rents than can be found in the two towns, and lower prices prevailing in the various stores, there should be no reason why this town should not be the favorite dwelling place of many of those who are called elsewhere by their employment. Even with Monessen and Donora waging campaigns of betterment, there will be no wholesale exodus to these towns from surrounding municipalities, as much as they might wish for such a condition. The town which offers the greatest attraction will continue to be the favorite dwelling place of those who can choose."—Charleroi Mail.

COUNCIL AT ODDS OVER ELECTION OF OFFICIALS FOR THE PRESENT YEAR

Indications are that Monessen will experience a bit of insurgency during the coming year. At least that was the opinion expressed yesterday after council disrupted and dismissed. As provided by the act of assembly a meeting was called yesterday for 10 o'clock for the purpose of reorganization. All members were present and after the old business was wound up council proceeded to reorganize. C. S. Duvall presented a resolution amending the by-laws governing the body whereupon Councilman Cushing arose to a point of order reciting section seven of the present by-laws which provide that a change proposed must be at the request of a two thirds membership. George H. Stevens who was unanimously made the chairman of the new body decided the point well taken and the proposed amendents were not considered. W. P. Wilson then made a motion to adjourn which was carried and the business of the session came to an abrupt ending.

Aside from the chairman, J. E. Pittman was the only officer elected. The amendents to the by-laws provided for the abolition of the position of street commissioner and consolidated the street departments with the engineering department. The engineer was to have a competent foreman named by the council but all other employes were subject to dismissal at his request.

As matters now stand there are no employes. At the meeting last month all borough employes were retained until the first of the year at which time they were either to be retained or discharged but the abrupt ending of the session brought to a close the services of all employees including police force, engineer, solicitor and street commissioner. The resolution was backed by five members of the body who seem to stand for a house cleaning and fumigation of the affairs of the city while the others seem to want to retain at least some of the employees. The meeting was void of any sensational features. There was no jangling or arguments.

Each member seemed to have his mind made up as to exactly what ought to be done and there was no desire to give in. When there will be another meeting no one knows but there baing a legally elected chairman there may be a call any time and it is likely there will be an adjustment of opinions and a concentrated effort to start matters off smoothly with the new year.

Miss Fisher the leading lady who plays the part of the college gril is thrown under thd stagecoach and instead of a fake rescue, a real one is made and Mr. Anderson narrowly escapes with his life. Two other interesting reels will be shown and the management does not hesitate in reccommending this show to it's patrons.

DEVOTIONAL SERVICES WELL ATTENDED

The first of the devotional services to be held during the week by the churches of this place was held last evening in the St. Paul's Lutheran church. A very encouraging attendance was on hand and the Ministerial association is very well pleased with the outlook for a successful week's services. The services tonight will be held in the United Presbyterian church, the devotional exercises are to be conducted by Rev. T. H. Hughes and the sermonette is to be delivered by Rev. G. H. Eveler, of the St. Paul's Lutheran church.

COUNCILS ACTIONS HOLD BACK WORK

As a result of the failure of council to agree on officers for the year at the meeting yesterday, all borough work is at a standstill. C. B. Parkinson's term expired with yesterday and the town has no engineer. All conracts let to the Hallam construction company in charge of foreman Doak have been temporarily suspended on account of a sewer being put in Rostraver street and crossing that thoroughfare. All of Mr. Doak's men were taken off the job this morning awaiting the actions of council. This morning there was a proposition to pay the engineer temporarily for any work that was required hastily, but this did not prove satisfactory to all and any hope of an amicable adjustment of the trouble.

Resolutions of Respect

Whereas it has pleased Almighty God who doeth all things well to take from our midst, our brother, James M. Pittman.

Resolved that Camp No. 90, Woodmen of the World, extend to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy in their bereavement, and may they find consolation in Him, who doeth all things well,

Be it further resolved that a copy of these resolutions be spread on our minutes and a copy sent to the family of our brother.

COMMISSIONERS ORGANIZE FOR YEAR

More interest was shown in the organization of the Board of County Commissioners at Greensburg yesterday than if it had been an election day. All day long people surged through the court-house awaiting a report from the County Commissioners and Prison Board, which were kept busy considering applications and balloting. The interest was largely due to the fact that ex-Sheriff John E. Shields assumed his place as a member of the Board of County Commissioners.

Sheriff Shields won a victory when he took his seat as a member of the board. On the prison board he sat with Attorney W. T. Dom, Jr. who had prosecuted the cases aganst him, and with Judge A. D. McConnel, before whom the cases aganst Shields were heard, and who sentenced him.

The county commissioners organized by electing M. F. Null, chief clerk and D. C. Ogden, solicitor. Only one or two of the old Courthouse employes were retained.

Card of Thanks

I desire to express the thanks which I cannot otherwise convey to the many neighbors and friends and to the I. O. O. F. and Woodmen lodges for their kind assistance during the sickness, death and burial of my beloved wife.

L. J. Goodwin.

Star Theatre

Another strong bill is being presented to the patrons of the Star theatre and lovers of musical acts will hear a good one in "The Musical Ibsons." The saxaphone work of this trio is exceptionally good and they intersperse it with a few catchy songs. Mabel Milton in singing and talking act pleases those who like this kind of an act, and the bill is completed by Mr. and Mrs. Wilber in a comic sketch entitled "The Man From Indiana."

The Retrospective

We have approached another milestone in our career and looking back over the ground we must acknowledge that 1911 was a great year for Monessen. We have added vastly to our material possessions and in various ways taken a long step toward the city attractive. While there have been criticisms passed upon the management of things, some justly, others unjustly, in measuring up, we cannot see but what our town is far ahead of many others in many ways.

Improvements have been added as municipal possessions, forming the exchange for loan funds expended during the year, so that every citizen of Monessen can look back upon the past year with very much satisfaction. As a result of the municipal expenditure. building operations were stimulated, so that in 1911 quite a large number of dwellings and business blocks were added to city streets. This contribution made by private enterprise. is in itself noteworthy and is simply an indication of what may be expected in the coming season and in other years.

But it is too soon for the city to reap a very large return for its expenditures for paving, but the addition to property values by reason of new buildings and appreciation of land is certain to bring back good dividends to the city treasury. Each year as it passes will demonstrate the wisdom of the city loan.

We have gained very much in the matter of sanitary benefits by the street paving, extension of sewage systems and other additions to our municipial possessions, while much has been done to impress the visitor and the tourist of the desirability of Monessen as a place of residence.

There is evidence that the city has advanced along civic lines. Political movements of the past year gave indications of a greater sense of individual responsiblity on the part of a large number of men and this is a distinct moral asset for the municipality. For the best possession of any city is virile citizenship, with moral fibre that will not complacently view wrong. There was much in 1911 for which to be thankful.

Out in the future of 1912 we have much planned that will be of benefit to all who live here and all who expect to make their homes here and when the year which we have now entered upon becomes history. Monessen will be bigger and better and will shine before the world as a morning star in the skies of prosperity.

Enterprise in Wrong

This town has many favorabe comments from the press of the country relative to its endeavor to find out why people live elsewhere and work in Monessen. The general opinion seems to be that we are ever striving to better the conditions of the town and in bettering the conditions of the town to add to the comforts of the working people. This move has aroused only the ire of those outside places that feel that they will be injured by any movement advanced to have Monessen workmen live here.

If there can be any sensible reason why the Board of Trade should not make an investigation we would like to hear it. The Belle Vernon Enterprise belshes forth in insulting remarks about the town which any business man or citizen has a right to resent. Any man with a spark of patriotic pride resents an insult to the place where he earns his living and in his heart he feels that any place that is good enough to work in is good enough to live in. The dust at Shepler an inch thick on the ground to which the Enterprise refers with a titter of pride is dust from Donora's blast furnaces and is a mile below Monessen and is not breathed by a Monessen family. Belle Vernon has as much smoke and fog as any town in the valley and if it wants to build up at the expense of other places, the issue might better not be raised.

The Independent starts the New Year in a new home and with much new equipment. Not only have we a new building, but we have added much new type for the purpose of meeting the requirements of our ever increasing job trade. Many of the newest faces now on the market have been purchased and will be here within the next few days. We trust our patrons will appreciate the desire we are manifesting to keep abreast of the times and when in need of anything in the line of job printing will consult our department.

That sample of insurgency that crept into municipal affairs is not of a permanent nature. It is just enough to let the public know that great minds still differ in opinion

Consulting Mme. Fantella

"Again and again I've addressed you," remarked Grace, "while you've been staring and gazing at that calendar. Aren't there enough days in the month to suit you?"

"Certainly, but this is the 15th of October—one of vital importance to me."

"What's so special about it?"

"About three weeks ago," answered Juliette, her face beaming with smiles and her eyes glistening with expectancy, "I consulted a clairvoyant, Madame Fantella."

"Madame Fantella used to sew for us," interrupted Grace.

"Not this one. She is simply marvelous, predicts miraculous events and gives you the most wonderful dates."

"For instance?" asked Grace, dubiously.

"At the age of sixty-nine I will meet with a serious illness, but will recover."

"I hope you will have recovered your senses by that time and not believe in every fake fortune teller or palmist."

"I'm not superstitious, but on this very date she prophecied that a tall dark young man would invite me to the theater and come what may, under no condition should I refuse, as he would propose."

"Who is the tall dark, mysterious gent?"

"Why, Charles Charleton, of course, whose invitation I accepted immediately for tonight."

"Astonishing! Surprising! Charles always seemed a confirmed bachelor to me," exclaimed Grace. "He is so attentive to all the girls."

"Little did I think I would be the fortunate one. How the girls will envy me, the wife of such a handsome, cultured, clever lawyer," said Juliette in a delighted, blissful tone.

When Charles called for Juliette that evening, he found her waiting for him looking as pretty as a lily all in white. She greeted him more cordially than ever and seemed to listen intently to even the most trivial remark. All the time she was pondering. "How, when and where will he say those glorious words that can so easily be answered in one little word of three letters?"

"You seem radiant with happiness," Charles commented.

"I'm always happy when I'm with you," she answered as they left the theater, where she had not heard one word of the play.

"Then I'm all the sorrier," commenced Charles, "to tell you that next week I intend moving to New York."

"Doesn't he think I'd move away," wondered Juliette. "Why, I'd go to the depths of Africa with the man I cared for." Aloud, she managed to ask, "Why?"

"A well-known legal firm want a single young man to look after one department of their business and I have accepted their offer, which means a successful future."

"Accept my congratulations," said Juliette. "But you will not always be single?"

"For a long time to come," explained Charles. "That's the reason I'm nice to all the girls, so none can take my attentions seriously."

"Not even if you admired the girl greatly," asked Juliette, fast losing confidence in Madame Fantella.

"No, because my mother on her death-bed exacted a promise from me that I would not marry until my sisters were married. As the kids are only seven and nine years now, my benedict days are in the dim future."

Charles was so interested in telling about his run of affairs and prospects that he failed to notice how listless and weary Juliette was.

"I shall never forget what a pleasant evening I spent," he said as he left her.

"I'll never forget it either," thought Juliette, tearing the calendar to shreds. "That I have wasted three weeks of my life thinking, hoping and dreaming of that conceited fool! Madame Fantella is certainly wonderful in predicting occurrences that don't occur."

Gaynor's Bible Neglected.

On his tour Mayor Gaynor of New York stopped at Great Barrington to look at the library of the town, to which, 14 years ago, while a summer resident there, he presented a copy of the Bible.

At that time he wanted a copy for reference in preparing a speech he was to make and was shocked to find that there was no copy of the Bible in the generous collection of bound volumes of which the town had always been proud. He gave a copy to the town library, and on the fly leaf of the book he wrote:

"I have found a great many libraries which lacked a great many books, but never before have I found one like this, which lacked the Great Book."

The town has guarded the Gaynor Bible zealously since 1897. It is in the pink of condition, never apparently having been opened; in fact, some of the leaves are still uncut.—Waterbury Post.

Just Suited.

"Mrs. Sykes is so reserved that she ought to get a position in the weather bureau."

"What has her reserve got to do with qualifications for that office?"

"Oh, when she speaks at a distance to you, she gives such cool waves."

DOUBLY PROVEN

Monessen Readers Can no Longer Doubt the Evidence

This Monessen citizen testified long ago.

Told of quick relief —of lasting benefit.

The facts are now confirmed.

Such testimony is complete—the evidence conclusive. It forms convincing proof of merit.

Mrs. Burns Wadsworth, 270 Donner avenue, Monessen, Pa., says: "I was in poor health for some time and suffered almost constantly from backache. I was subject to chills and dizzy spells. Knowing that Doan's Kidney Pills were good for kidney complaint, I procured a supply from the Hirsch Drug Co. Their use helped me from the first and before long I was cured. I am now enjoying good health and my kidneys do not bother me in the least" (From statement given Oct 2, 1907.)

A PERMANENT CURE

Mrs. Wadsworth was interviewed on Nov. 9, 1909 and she said: "The cure effected by Doan's Kidney Pills in my case has been permanent. I have recommended this remedy to my friends on several occasions and all who have used it, speak highly of the results received.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Tod Mannow's Strategy

"Shucks!" said Tod Mannows, distinctly. Then he sat down on the lowest step and glumly surveyed the back yard. Never before had he noted how extremely large is a back yard 30 by 30 feet.

Thrusting his hands into his pockets he leaned back stiffly and continued to glower at the vast expanse. The reason for this sudden and extreme dislike for the rear part of the Mannows premises was the ultimatum issued that morning at breakfast by the elder Mannows.

"I'm tired of your fooling around getting into mischief all through vacation," his father had announced at the conclusion of an episode relating to two broken windows, a carelessly thrown baseball and an irate neighbor. "You are big and strong enough to devote your surplus energy to something useful. I have long wished to have a garden. Now, you may spade up the entire back yard so that next spring it will be in condition to plant. You can take as long as you like for its accomplishment, but you've got to work at it for awhile every day."

Tod was well acquainted with his father. Nothing short of a convulsion of nature and the complete wiping out of the Mannows premises would suffice to alter that decree. Therefore, he remarked again with desperate emphasis, "Shucks!" and then got to his feet slowly.

At an ear piercing whistle from the next yard he looked even more glum than before. The summons emanated from Fatty Dyckman and meant that the boys were gathering in the baseball lot.

"Can't!" Tod yelled to Fatty. "Gotta spade a garden!"

Fatty's head rose above the high board fence. "Aw, cumalong!" he said, unbelievingly. He looked serious, however, when Tod appeared at the basement door with a spade in his hand. "Gee!" he breathed. "That's fierce! Mebbe I'll help you," Fatty said nobly "If I get time, that is," he added, more cautiously.

Tod did not cheer up at the handsome offier. He was a pessimist on this subject. Fatty's head disappeared, and Tod with great effort spaded up at least a teaspoonful of the soil. Manual labor was his acute idea of nothing at all to do.

Suddenly something in the dirt glittered and he pounced upon it breathlessly. It was nothing but a bit of glass. As he turned it over in his fingers an idea crept into his brain. A grin slowly transfigured his features. Then he dropped the piece of glass and the spade, ran to the rear door and slid into the house.

When he emerged he had his mother's embroidery scissors and a large back comb that belonged to his sister. It had been laid away in her top bureau drawer to await the return of the style demanding large back combs in one's hair. Thickly strewn over it were big, sparkly brilliants which glittered in the sunlight like the best product of the South African mines.

It did not take the boy long to pry them all loose. They made a handful.

Tod planted three of them very near the spot where he had spaded up the teaspoonful of soil. Then he distributed the others over the yard with the skill of a veteran salter of gold mines. Next he strolled to the fence. Fatty was just starting out with his catchers' glove.

"Yow-w-w!" Tod yelled. "I must 'a sprained by wrist!" He dangled it in the air. "Pa'll jump on me for not spadin', too!"

Fatty looked irresolute. "I s'pose I kin do a little before the boys git there," he said, heroically. He climbed the fence and took the spade.

"Right here I started," Tod directed, nursing his wrist. "Oh, gee!"

Fatty had shoveled two swadefuls of earth when he suddenly went down on his knees.

"What's the matter?" asked Tod from the back steps.

"Nothin'," Fatty replied, bending over something he held in his hand. He made another wild grab into the dirt. Then he turned around with an excited face.

"Say," he called. "You'd better go into the house and lie down. You can't tell about a sprain. Mebbe it's broke. You wanta be careful! Anyhow, I like to spade!"

"All right," said Tod reluctantly. "Don't work too hard," he cautioned Fatty as he disappeared through the back door.

Frequently during the morning he abandoned his hammock and wild west book and plate of fudge, which his sister thought she had hidden behind the top row of books, to look out upon Fatty Dyckman. That energetic young person was toiling furiously. Dirt streaked his perspiring face, and frequently he paused and rubbed his aching back. Now and then he made a triumphant grab into the spaded earth.

That evening the senior Mannows looked with surprise at the large amount of work accomplished in the garden. Nearly all of it was spaded.

"You must have worked like a nailer!" he said to his son. "I didn't mean that you should kill yourself by spading it all in one day!"

"Aw," said Tod indistinctly, as he slid out to join the boys. "That was [illegible]"

CIGAR SMOKING IN GERMANY

Business Is Increasing as Kaiser's Subjects Realize Pipe Is Unhandy to Carry.

Mr. A. von Reiger, president of the town council of Dresden, Germany, who is at the Ebbitt, is also a manufacturer of cigars.

"The cigar business in Germany is on the increase," said he. "In my factory if I do not turn out 250,000 a day I consider business very poor. Germans, long famed for their variety and quality of pipes, are taking to cigars. In former days a German was always pictured with a stein of beer and a big curved-stemmed pipe. Now the cigar has taken the latter's place.

"The main reason for the change is the fact that pipes are unhandy to carry around. They take up a lot of space in one's pocket, and a packet of tobacco takes up some more. Germans are outdoor people, and the cigarette is too mild for them. A man who is in the open all the time likes a strong smoke, and the more he is out of doors the stronger he wants it. Cigars can be carried easily, and they give even more satisfaction than the pipe. Hence the change.

"My," he continued, "but your American prices are high! No wonder a man is not considered rich unless he is the possessor of $1,000,000. Why, in Germany if a man has 1,000,000 marks, which is something more than $200,000 in American money, he is considered phenomenally rich. It is a shame we can't ship foodstuffs across the ocean to you without paying duty."—Washington Post.

RAINBOW IS A BACK NUMBER

It Is Put Out of the Running by the Varied Coloring in Men's Socks.

"The rainbow isn't in it now with the socks worn by men," said, between stations, an elevated railroad guard to his neighbor on the platform, and he continued:

"Just glance in there, will you, and let your eye range along at the men's feet. Purple, green, yellow, blue, red, gray, pink and black socks, and socks of one color with spots of another and socks with stripes in 'em and crossbars and socks of various colors mixed, and I'll bet with all those colors that knock heck out of the rainbow you see that one pair there with no color in 'em plainest of all? Sure, it's that pair of white socks, the only pair in the car; and you might travel here day after day and not see another pair.

"They tell me, and I can just remember a little of it myself, that there was a time when men didn't wear anything but white socks. White socks, and maybe some gray, and then they came to black, but who'd have thought they'd ever come to this? I tell you—" and he broke off to yell: "Umpty-ump stree—t! Umpty-ump stree—t!"

"The rainbow's a back number now," he added.

Passing of the Spare Room.

Fifty years ago nearly every house in New York City had one or more guest chambers. Today half her inhabitants rise at an unusual hour to permit their beds to be turned into parlor furniture or piano fortes. If Cousin Mary or Cousin John realized all this as, of course, no one who has not lived in a great city can really realize it, they would understand better just why they had not been invited to visit Tom's folks. It is not because Tom and his wife wish to slight Mary and her husband that they have not invited them to visit them in the city, but because positively the city cousins have not enough more room in their tiny apartment for even so much as a canary bird. On the other hand, John and his wife probably have a great twelve-room house in the country, a house whose latch-string is known to be always hanging out.—Woman's Home Companion.

Woman's Relative Value.

Once at the table of Sir James Knowles, editor of the Nineteenth century, the talk ran on the relative physical and mental value of women. Turning to Sir Ray Lankester, the aged prime minister (Mr. Gladstone) said: "I am of the opinion that the relative value of a man and a woman is in all classes of society about the same as it was in my grandfather's time in Jamaica. When they wanted to buy a negro they gave one hundred and twenty pounds for a man and eighty pounds for a woman, and," he added, "that is a fair measure of their relative values the world over."

The Real People

Elizabeth had never noticed how plain and provincial her family were until young Haddon began calling on her.

The contrast between his polished courtesy and her father's bluff good nature was positively painful, and she began to wish that her father had a club to go to evenings and that her mother wouldn't always come into the parlor and discuss the weather with Mr. Haddon. As for her boisterous brother Jack, she could almost find it in her heart to regret that he was not many miles away.

"Mother," she said, one evening when she had reason to expect young Haddon, "won't you please make Jack go to bed early tonight?"

"Make Jack go to bed early? Why, Bess, I don't tell Jack when to go to bed any more He's too old for that"

"He isn't too old to drink lemonade and eat cookies as if he had never seen evening refreshments before," complained Elizabeth. "He acted like a big and a wild Indian the other night He stamped around and whistled so loud that we couldn't hear ourselves talk, and he used the commonest slang, mother. I don't know what Mr Haddon thinks of him"

"Oh, I guess he knows a rollicking boy when he sees one," said Mrs. Day, comfortably

"Mother" Elizabeth hesitated a moment. "I wish you wouldn't wear your apron when you come into the parlor evenings"

"Why not, Bess?"

"Well, it looks so—bourgeois."

"What's that?"

"Why, you know, sort of common."

"Well, that's funny I always feel real dressed up when I have on one of my pretty aprons. But I won't wear an apron if you don't want me to"

"That's a dear," said Elizabeth, gratefully. "And, mother, do you think you could coax father to wear his coat when Mr. Haddon is here? It looks just dreadful for a man to go around the house with his coat off"

"But your father likes to be comfortable, and I don't think he looks a bit untidy without his coat."

Elizabeth sighed deeply. Just then the door bell rang Eager to get there before her brother, she ran and opened the door herself.

"Say, you're getting awfully anxious, aren't you, Bess?" Jack called.

Elizabeth, in her endeavor to appear unconscious of this thrust, greeted her visitor with what she knew was stilted politeness. They had not been settled in the parlor two minutes before her mother appeared. She spoke pleasantly to young Haddon, asked him if he didn't think the evenings were getting cool, and then, glancing down at her apron, precipitately left the room. A moment later she returned, consciously smoothing out the front of her skirt, from which she had just removed her apron

Elizabeth's annoyance at this was not lessened when Jack bobbed in and asked loudly: "What time you going to have the handout, Bess? I'm going down to Bud Brown's, but if there's to be a feed here I'll beat it back"

"Oh, Jack, I wish you'd—" began Elizabeth.

"Run on, dear," said Jack's mother I'll save you something if we have anything to eat Oh, there's father." Mrs Day's face beamed with welcome for an instant, and then suddenly clouded over. "Father, don't you think you ought to have on your coat? It's a little chilly."

"Chilly! Gammon, mother. You know I never wear my coat in the house Say, Haddon, these women are always fussing at their men folks Some day you'll know what it is to have a wife worrying about you."

Elizabeth's face turned scarlet, but Haddon laughed, and said "I certainly hope so."

"Now, father, come out in the dining room. I want to show you something Mrs Day smiled at her own tact and led her husband away to be gently lectured on the subject of wearing a coat.

"Do you know," said Haddon to Elizabeth as soon as they were alone, "I think you are about the most fortunate girl in the world"

"Why" was the astonished query.

"Because you're surrounded by such whole souled relatives. I feel like embracing your sweet little mother when I see her wearing that crisp white apron. It takes me back to the time I had a mother up in Maine who wore white aprons And your father! How hearty and kind he is! I tell you, in these days of affectation it's a privilege to meet people like Mr. and Mrs Day."

"What about Jack?" asked Elizabeth, hesitatingly.

"He's an all round boy—the kind that makes the real man. It's the real people who count."

"I fear," murmured Elizabeth, "that I'm the only one in the family that isn't quite real."

Haddon laughed. "You're real enough to suit me," he answered.

"So your marriage has proved a disappointment to you, has it?"

"Yes, all except my husband's Christian name. I was always in love with [illegible]

FORTUNE IN HIS LUCKY COIN

Pocket Piece, Carried by Man for 58 Years, Proves to Be Worth $3,000.

The grimly humorous goddess of fortunes good and ill never wrought for the heroes of a Scheherazade or a Hans Anderson a stranger trick than that by which she recently thrust a fortune into the pocket of an unsuspecting grocer's clerk of Los Angeles

He is Charles L. Cross, a clerk for Frank A. Valle, a grocer of South Main street. For nearly fifty-five years he has carried as a lucky pocket piece a silver half dollar of the same date as the year of his birth, 1853.

And it has justified his faith in its luckiness at last, for from being merely a battered and war worn four bit piece of ancient vintage and doubtful beauty it has suddenly leaped to relatively enormous value as the second known coin of that date in existence

Twenty-five hundred dollars was refused with scorn by the owner of the only other 1853 half dollar known to exist—rated as the most valuable coin now in the exhibit of the American Numismatic association in Chicago. There are few individual coins of greater value by record of their rarity than the 1853 half dollar, even the historic dollar of 1804 taking a back seat when it comes to relative scarcity.

More than half a century ago in his native town of Niles, Mich., the coin was given to Cross as a birthday present because it was struck off in the same year of his birth. It went into the pocket of young Charles' first pair of pants and in his trousers pocket it has remained ever since.

Cross is now fifty-eight years old and his life has not always been an easy one. He has seen the time when his lucky piece was silent in his pocket because there was not even a penny there to jingle with it. There have been times when he has taken the four bits from its nesting place and was about to sacrifice it for its equivalent in bread and beans because, except for it, he was absolutely dead broke, hungry and without where to lay his head.

There has always been in the back of his head the whimsical idea that it would some time bring him luck. And it has brought him luck.

GREAT BUBBLE OF LAVA

Is Discovered Floating Within the Crater of a Volcano in Honolulu.

Mail advices from Honolulu tell of the most amazing phenomenon ever observed within the crater of a volcano by a white man.

It was no less than a tremendous bubble of lava, inflated by gas from the very center of the earth, which supported an island as it floated across a lake of fiery liquid. Frank A. Perret, the scientist who observed it, estimated that it covered an area of 3,000 square feet, and he was fortunate enough to secure a few photographs, although conditions were far from favorable for picture taking.

"The bubble was a huge sausage-shaped affair, inflated with volcanic gas and composed of lava glass," says the scientist in his report. "A lava fountain, boiling continuously under the eastern end, gave the appearance of a screw propeller, and the amazing contrivance seemed to be navigating the lake like a great whaleback steamer.

"There was an island of black crust which, when it began to sink, evolved a great quantity of gas, which blew the bubble of lava glass, and this in turn sustained the island and prevented it from sinking. It made several tours of the lava before it disappeared from sight at last."

This was observed in the volcano Halemaumau, and Perrett and two Japanese assistants were the only ones who saw it.

Egg Substitutes in Great Britain.

An American firm making an egg substitute desires information as to the opening for its sale in Great Britain. This article is already sold more extensively in this country than in the United States. It is of British manufacture and is sold by almost every grocery. One brand of egg powder sells at eight to sixteen cents per tin according to size, and another at eight to fourteen cents, or eleven cents per dozen small packets. There is also a product called Eggo which is stated to consist of new laid eggs in the form of powder which is retailed at twenty-three cents per carton. The substitutes referred to are not sold through agents, but directly by the makers to the various retail stores and grocers, they are well known and widely used. There is no duty on the importation of egg substitutes into Great Britain provided sugar does not form a component part; when it does duty is assessed according to the proportion, and polarization, ascertained by test.

Where the Trouble Lay.

"James," said his mother, "you eat and eat, and never seem satisfied. Here is one more helping of pudding, but it must be the last."

James started on the pudding with delight.

"Once upon a time, James," went on his mother, "there was a little boy who ate and ate until one day he ate too much pudding, and he burst."

"There ain't such a thing as too much pudding," grunted Jimmy, as he polished his helping.

"There must be," said the mother, "or why did the little boy burst?"

"Not enough boy," replied James, and handed up his plate for

RESTORE GRAY HAIR TO NATURAL COLOR

By Common Garden Sage, a Simple Remedy for Dandruff, Falling, Faded, Gray Hair.

The old idea of using sage for darkening the hair is again coming in vogue. Our grandmothers used to have dark, glossy hair at the age of seventy-five, while our mothers have white hair before they are fifty. Our grandmothers used to make a "sage tea" and apply it to their hair. The tea made their hair soft and glossy, and gradually restored the natural color.

One objection to using such a preparation was the trouble of making it, especially as it had to be made every two or three days, on account of souring quickly. This objection has been overcome, and by asking almost any first-class druggist for Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy the public can get a superior preparation of sage, with the admixture of sulphur, another valuable remedy for hair and scalp troubles. Daily use of this preparation will not only quickly restore the color of the hair, but will also stop the hair from falling out and make it grow.

Get a bottle from your druggist today. Use it and see for yourself how quickly dandruff goes and gray hairs vanish.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.
